They are essentially doing this to block free accounts. You cannot create an account under the "free" program any more, but you can still sign in with an old free account to listen to free music. The problem with this is, there is already an issue with free accounts.

People are creating accounts to listen to free music and then go to a premium account to make more money. This is actually a bit of a scam. Is it really a scam to make money off the music industry? You can easily listen to music for free and subscribe, there is no scam in that. I'd even argue that the "scam" is when free accounts are devalued by allowing people to access premium music for free. With the new changes, Last.fm are just the same as Myspace. It is funny how often people make a similiar argument. "Myspace's new policy is garbage. Scam! Scam!" without realizing that Myspace's new policies are in effect now. Last.fm's free account was about as close to "premium" account as you could get. I know lots of bands that play as a free band and using a free account there you would listen to at most ten songs per month. If you wanted more than that, you would have to pay f678ea9f9e
